

NEBRASKA COLLEGE OF TECHNICAL AGRICULTURE

NCTA NEWS
404 East 7th Street
Curtis, NE 69025-9525
Mary Crawford: 308-367-5231
mcrawford@unl.edu

Sept. 27, 2018
By NCTA News Service

Aggies to host Discovery Day Oct. 8th

CURTIS, Neb. – High school students are invited to explore their academic and financial options during campus visits in October and November at the Nebraska College of Technical Agriculture in Curtis.

“NCTA Discovery Days” will be at the Curtis campus from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Monday, Oct. 8, and again Nov. 12. A third session will be March 4, 2019.

Students, their families, guidance counselors and youth leaders are invited to participate in the day of career exploration, said Emily Griffiths, NCTA recruiting coordinator.

“Prospective students explore the NCTA campus, learn about the high quality, low cost education we provide, meet faculty and staff and experience NCTA's unique learning environment,” said Griffiths.

Griffiths is joined in NCTA recruiting by Juliana Kroeger, assistant coordinator.

The pair have been sharing materials about NCTA programs during regional Educational Planning Programs across Nebraska this month and next.

At Discovery Days students can learn about campus clubs and Aggie organizations, and activities which include intramural sports and intercollegiate teams.

Prospective students will also learn about applying for federal financial aid (FAFSA).

Jodi Vanden Berge, director of College Planning with EducationQuest Foundation, will meet with parents and students in answering questions about financial aid. The day includes opportunity for individual consultations with faculty advisors.

Pre-registration is requested for lunch and tours at <https://ncta.unl.edu/discovery-days>.

Activities begin at the Nebraska Agriculture Industry Education Center, University and Siminoe Streets, with sign-in and refreshments at 8:30 a.m.

(more)

Kendra Marxsen, a sophomore studying veterinary technology, is joined by her parents, Byron and Danelle Marxsen of Schuyler, during freshman campus arrival in 2017. Kendra is chasing her dreams in 2018 as a student leader and competitor with her border collie, Tank, on the NCTA Stock Dog Team. (Mary Crawford / NCTA News)

News article link: <https://go.unl.edu/tci6>

#

Source: Emily Griffiths, recruitment coordinator, egriffiths2@unl.edu

Writer: Mary Crawford, NCTA News, 308-367-5231, Mcfawford@unl.edu