

NEBRASKA COLLEGE OF TECHNICAL AGRICULTURE

Oct. 4, 2021

Aggie Rodeo Team ends fall season

By NCTA News

CURTIS, Neb. – Aggie Rodeo from the Nebraska College of Technical Agriculture at Curtis completed its fall season in North Dakota.

Aggie Ellie Stohlmann competed in barrel racing at collegiate rodeos this fall including at the North Platte Stampede in September. (George Hipple photo for NCTA)

Two Aggies competed in double rodeos at Fort Dickenson on Sept. 30 to Oct. 2.

Ellie Stohlmann of Ashland was in barrel racing. Callie Bauer of Arcadia team roped. However, vigorous competition ended their fall season, said Aggie Coach Jaden Clark.

“We came up short in making it to the final short go, unfortunately,” Clark said. “Everyone had a safe and enjoyable weekend, at the least.”

Other Aggies who had hoped to attend were unable to travel this time. Nathan Burnett, team leader in season points, is looking forward to further collegiate contests as an Aggie in saddle bronc riding when the season resumes next April.

Round Robin Team Roping

The popular Round Robin Team Roping Series that the club started this fall continues each Tuesday night until November 9.

Contests for headers and heelers are held at Curtis Mill Park outdoor arenas or, in case of inclement weather, at the NCTA Livestock Teaching Center on campus.

Proceeds are split between the winning header and winning heeler, and the NCTA Rodeo Team.

# #

Online article: <https://go.unl.edu/mni6>