NCTA dean reception August 5

CURTIS, Neb. – A farewell reception for Curtis residents Jessica and Ron Rosati will be Monday, August 5 from 4-5 p.m. at the Nebraska College of Technical Agriculture in Curtis.

The public is invited for refreshments and farewell greetings at the NCTA Nebraska Agriculture Industry Education Center. Dr. Rosati became dean at NCTA in July, 2013.

He is retiring as the NCTA dean on Monday, and will continue employment with the University of Nebraska until the end of December, 2019.

Dr. Rosati will serve as senior advisor to a new college, the Rwanda Institute of Conservation Agriculture, which is based near Kigali, Rwanda. It opens in September with 80 students.
