

NEBRASKA COLLEGE OF TECHNICAL AGRICULTURE

January 31, 2022
By NCTA News

Vet Techs to flip flapjacks

Pancakes are on the menu from 8 a.m. to noon Saturday, February 5 for a student club fundraiser at the Nebraska College of Technical Agriculture.

The Student Technicians of Veterinary Medical Association will be serving pancakes with various toppings, coffee and hot cocoa to raise funds for STVMA projects and a national educational conference.

The public is invited to attend at The Barn (NCTA student union). In addition to the breakfast, attendees can purchase additional tickets to be entered in a drawing for prizes donated to STVMA.

Proceeds will be divided between the STVMA and to defray travel costs for three VT students who will attend the 94th Annual Western Veterinary Conference in Nevada in March.

The three students will be joined by two NCTA faculty members for the annual conference which draws international speakers and specialists in the animal health and veterinary profession.

“We are excited to attend as we were looking online at the lectures that will be at the conference,” said Ashley Kowalski, a first-year Vet Tech student from Lincoln. Many of the sessions focus on small animal care.

For details on Saturday’s breakfast, contact Ashley Kowalski, Jurnny Thornbrugh or Katie Morton through the Veterinary Technology Systems main office at 308-367-5222.

The breakfast is $5 per person which includes a chance in the drawing. Raffle tickets also may be purchased separately with 5 tickets for $20.

# #

Online article: <https://go.unl.edu/qys0>

NCTA students (L-R) Katie Morton, Ashley Kowalski and Jurnny Thornbrugh are hosting a pancake breakfast in Curtis to raise funds for travel to a conference and for the Student Technicians of Veterinary Medicine Association. (Melody MacDonald Photo / NCTA)